

Teen and Ty games (extension)

Cut out the set of number cards and the 6 bingo boards.

Sorting activity

Give a selection of the number cards to the pupil to sort into groups. Encourage them to give reasons for sorting the way they have, eg they all have 1 unit, they are all 'ty' numbers.

Listening activity

Spread out the number cards face up. Say one of the numbers for the pupil to find.

Speaking activity

Repeat listening activity 1, but this time with the pupil reading the number cards for you to identify.

Guess my number 1

Spread out the number cards face up. Write one of the numbers down on a piece of paper, then tell the pupil how many tens and units it has. They must pick and read out the card that has the number you've described. If the card matches the number you wrote, they can keep it. Once the pupil is confident, you can switch roles.

Guess my number 2

Put the number cards in a pile face down. One person picks the top card and says how many tens and units the number has. The other person must write the number on a piece of paper and then say it. If they do both correctly, they can keep the card. Switch roles after each turn.

Bingo (2 to 4 players)

Place all the cards face down and up to 3 players choose a board. Use either the boards from Set A (easier) or Set B (harder). Put the number cards in a pile face down. The caller (or one of the players) picks a card without showing it and says the number. The person with that number on their board may cover it with the number card. The first person to cover a row of four wins.

Bingo (up to 7 players)

One player is the caller, the other players may each choose any board. The caller picks a card and says the number without showing it. Anyone with the number on their board can cover it with a counter. The caller then shows the number card to help identify any incorrectly covered numbers. The first person to cover a row of four wins.
